Ohio's Private Outdoor and Forest Recreation Enterprises

Dwight R. McCurdy

Central States Forest Experiment Station

in cooperation with Ohio Soil and Water Conservation Districts
May 1963
Mention of specific enterprises in this report does not mean endorsement by the publishing agencies. Omission of any existing enterprises from the list is an oversight.
FOREWORD

The purpose of this directory is to make it easier to gather economic data and other pertinent information for decision making in recreational development. Business, agricultural, and government leaders will be called upon quite frequently in the next few years for this type of information.

The facts presented in this directory were compiled in a cooperative effort and we wish to thank the personnel of Ohio Soil and Water Conservation Districts for supplying information on recreational enterprises in their Districts.

Soil and Water Conservation Districts are legal subdivisions of the State of Ohio. Each is governed by five supervisors elected by the owners and occupiers of the land within the district. Districts are organized in Ohio on a county basis. Each develops and carries out a program for the conservation and development of soil and water resources within the district. Programs are carried out through a cooperative agreement with landowners. The goal of every district is use of land within its capabilities.

The Central States Forest Experiment Station is investigating the profit potential of outdoor-recreation enterprises on small private woodlands. This Forest Service research is a part of the Department of Agriculture's broad Rural Area Development program to strengthen rural America.

OHIO'S PRIVATE OUTDOOR AND FOREST RECREATION ENTERPRISES

Dwight R. McCurdy

Private enterprises that offer outdoor and forest recreation were inventoried in January and February of 1963 by the Ohio Soil and Water Conservation Districts and the Central States Forest Experiment Station. This directory is the outcome of that inventory.

Names and addresses of those involved in each of the 13 kinds of enterprises are listed, beginning on the pages shown below. All charge a fee and, except for some shooting preserves marked with an asterisk (*), all are open to the public.

Personnel of Ohio Soil and Water Conservation Districts revised a list of private recreation enterprises compiled from several sources. District personnel added many unlisted enterprises and made corrections for enterprises that had changed hands or were no longer operating. One source of names and addresses for the preliminary list was case histories of private recreation enterprises in files of the Ohio office of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service. Another U.S. Government source was an inventory of outdoor recreation firms in southeastern Ohio published by Economic Research Service of the Department of Agriculture. The Ohio Department of Natural Resources provided two sources, a list of shooting preserves licensed by Ohio and an inventory of private campgrounds. Two other sources were lists of vacation farms, one published by the Ohio Farm Vacation Association and one published by the Switzerland of Ohio Association.

The following recreational enterprises and organizations were not included in the inventory and do not appear in this directory:

1. Enterprises selling recreational land or leasing recreational rights

2. Associations promoting various recreational enterprises such as the Camping Council, Switzerland of Ohio Vacations Association, etc.

3. Resorts

4. Recreational enterprises adjacent to large bodies of water, such as those on the shores at Buckeye Lake and Lake Erie unless the enterprise was part of a farm

5. Enterprises such as golf courses, driving ranges, dance halls, outdoor theaters, organized sporting areas, go-kart tracks, auto and horse race tracks, swimming pools, etc.

6. Recreational clubs or organizations, such as conservation clubs, country clubs, etc. (except where thought to be open to non-members for a fee)

7. Historical sites
CAMPGROUNDS

There are generally two types of campgrounds, transient and vacation. The transient campground is located along a well-traveled highway, or close to one, so that travelers may readily stop off while on a trip. It may also be near a large city or some tourist attraction that draws crowds. The vacation campground, on the other hand, is usually a destination in itself and most provide facilities to meet the recreational needs of the camper as well as sleeping and eating needs. Campgrounds are usually found in a forest setting. The fee is generally charged per camping site on a nightly basis.

PICNIC AREAS

Picnic areas can provide several related recreational activities. They are often used by groups for a few hours or all day, and center around water and trees. A general admission fee is usually charged with additional fees for participation in particular activities. Facilities range from one picnic table under a shade tree or a group of tables in a woodlot to large open areas suitable for outings of carnival aspect. Picnicking encourages participation in other outdoor activities. Therefore, areas and facilities suitable for games, hiking, swimming, walking for pleasure, etc. are usually provided.

COTTAGE RENTALS

The inventory included only cottages owned by farmers or forest-land owners and rented for fishing or hunting. The facilities ranged from rustic cabins located along streams running through the forest, with little or no furnishings, to modern cabins along well-traveled highways, with everything furnished including bedding. The fee is usually on a daily or weekly basis. Many cabins are associated with a campground or pay lake.

PAY LAKES

Pay fishing ponds or lakes are often stocked with particular species of fish such as northern pike, walleyes, rainbow trout, etc. Usually, if a variety of fish is offered, there will be several ponds or lakes. Such facilities as boats and boat ramps are often available. Snackbars, picnic areas, sale of tackle and bait, etc. may be provided. The fee is generally charged per pole or on a daily basis. But ponds or lakes are also often leased on an annual basis to an organized group.

BOAT RENTALS

Boats may sometimes be rented at pay lakes. But in some places in Ohio, boats may be rented for purposes other than fishing such as for canoeing along wooded streams. Boat docking, outboard motor rental, and sales of gasoline and oil are examples of other services that may be provided. Boats are usually rented by the hour or by the day.

PRIVATE BEACHES

Beaches on private lakes or ponds were the only swimming areas included in the inventory. The degree of development of swimming areas ranges from farm ponds having no improvements to those on large lakes with sanded beaches, diving boards, bathhouses, etc. Beaches are often bordered by woodlands in which picnic tables and other facilities are available. Private beaches are also often a part of other recreation enterprises such as pay lakes and campgrounds. An entrance fee is usually charged and equipment may be rented. However, a weekly, monthly or yearly membership may be required.

GENERAL HUNTING AREAS

General hunting areas are either woodlands, brushlands, or farmlands with sufficient food and cover for game to flourish. The type of game available varies with the food and cover on the land. Most operators provide for rabbit, pheasant, and quail hunting, but woodland owners frequently provide for squirrel and raccoon hunting. Where ponds and lakes are suitably located, duck hunting may be available. The charge is usually an entrance fee for hunting with additional fees for other services that may be furnished, such as hunting and retrieving dogs.

SHOOTING PRESERVES

Shooting preserves are farms where artificially propagated game is released for hunting in fields that are specially planted to provide food and cover and are bordered by brushlands or woodlands. A fee is charged for hunting and other services that may be provided for the sportsmen. These may include gun dogs and handlers, guides, lodge privileges, meals, transportation to the shooting fields, trap or skeet shooting, and other accommodations that make a day afield more memorable, relaxing, and enjoyable.

Pheasants, quail, and chukar partridge are the most popular game birds. Often ducks are also provided. When available, duck blinds are placed along flyways that ducks have been trained to follow to ponds when released.

The open season runs from the first of September through April. Most shooting preserves cater to the general public, but some are operated by members as clubs for themselves and guests and by business firms for employees and clients.

SHOOTING AREAS

Shooting areas may be operated by a gun club, or associated with a shooting preserve or hunting area. The three most common activities are target shooting, trap shooting, and skeet. Target shooting consists of practice firing at a butt or mark. Trap shooting consists of shooting at liberated pigeons or at glass balls and clay pigeons sprung into the air from a trap. Skeet is a form of trap shooting in which clay targets are thrown in such a way as to duplicate the angles of flight of birds and fowl. Picnicking and other facilities are generally provided in a forest setting. An entrance fee is usually charged with additional fees for supplies and equipment rental.

Riding stables provide several activities revolving around horses or ponies. In summer, horseback riding, pony riding, and riding instructions are the main attractions. In fall and winter when weather is suitable, hay rides and sleigh rides are in order. Riding trails usually are routed along streams and through the woods and forest. The fee for horseback riding is usually on an hourly basis. Other services such as training and boarding of horses and ponies are often provided. Many riding stables are associated with vacation farms or dude ranches.

WINTER SPORTS AREAS

Winter sports areas include facilities for at least one sport such as ice skating, sledding, tobogganing, and snow skiing. Facilities are usually provided in a forest setting and often are part of other recreational enterprises, such as pay lakes, recreation parks, etc. Therefore, both facilities and services vary widely. Where the sports are tobogganing and snow skiing, facilities are often elaborate and extensive and offer every possible service to the winter sports enthusiast. Where the sports are ice skating and sledding, facilities are often primitive and simple. Besides an entrance fee, there are usually additional fees for renting equipment.

ORGANIZED SUMMER CAMPS

Summer camps serve diverse purposes, catering to particular age or interest groups such as boys or girls, the infirm, or the underprivileged. The nature and extent of facilities, as well as the camp layout, usually vary with the purpose. But the same camp may be used by several different kinds of groups and therefore is designed to satisfy a variety of needs. Whatever the purpose, camps are located in or near a natural forest environment. Living in close contact with nature is the unique feature that distinguishes camping most clearly from all other youth programs. The charge is generally on a weekly basis.

VACATION FARMS AND DUDE RANCHES

Vacation farms and dude ranches are places city dwellers go to relax and get away from urban traffic. The farm homes are usually modern with more than enough sleeping, eating, and living space. The main attractions are country air, home cooking, a woodlot, pleasant and quiet surroundings, and participation in farming activities. Other attractions may include horses to ride, a swimming hole, a place to fish, and fields and woods for hiking. The fee is usually on a daily or weekly basis.
